Magis and Seeing Things Whole invite you to an 'Intimate Conversation' with former TDIndustries CEO Jack Lowe

Tuesday, December 15, 2009 7:30–9:30 a.m.
3800 American Boulevard West, Bloomington, MN

Jack Lowe, Jr.

*Retired CEO of TDIndustries
Chairman, Zale Corporation
Board of Directors,
Drew Industries
Board of Directors, KDC*

Jack joined TDIndustries in 1964, became the CEO and Board Chair in 1980, and in December 2004, retired as CEO.

TDIndustries is a national mechanical and plumbing construction and facility service company, headquartered in Dallas. TDIndustries projects have included Dallas Cowboy Stadium, American Airlines Center, Phoenix's Cardinal Stadium, Texas Instruments semiconductor plants, Embassy Suites and San Marcos Conference Center in San Marcos, Palisades West in Austin, Lakewood Church, 1000 Main, Memorial Hermann Heart and Vascular Institute and Methodist Hospital Outpatient Care Center in Houston. Jack graduated Magna Cum Laude from Rice University with a BA and BSEE degrees, and served in the U.S. Navy.

Today's leaders are challenged with creating opportunities in a rapidly changing global marketplace. How do leaders align core values with strategies to build high-performance, sustainable companies? How does Servant Leadership instill confidence and build teams capable of carrying out a bold vision?

Magis Ventures invites you to an "Intimate Conversation" with former TDIndustries CEO, Jack Lowe.

In an interview and dialogue forum, Diane Nettifee, president of Magis, will facilitate a conversation with business owners, CEOs and Jack to explore the role of Servant Leadership and core values in developing a high-performance, Values-Led™ company.

Founded in 1946, TDIndustries has developed into one of America's premier specialty contracting companies. For eleven consecutive years the company has appeared in the FORTUNE magazine's list of the 100 best companies to work for in America. Jack Lowe attributes the trust which underpins their success to the employee-owned company's "servant leader" philosophy, in which all 1700 employees are Partners. 2008 revenue was about $320 million.
